The Job Interview

On average, each corporate job offer attracts 250 resumes. Of those candidates, 4 to 6 will get called for an interview, and only one will get the job.

60% of job candidates go through three interviews or more.

28% of CEO candidates lose the job just because they communicate poorly during the interview.

60% of bosses indicate that clothes could be a deciding factor between two almost-identical candidates.

A survey of 2,000 hiring managers found that 33% knew whether they would hire someone in the first 90 seconds.
